General Min Aung Hlaing:

Re: Arrest and detention of lawyers and law students in Myanmar

I write on behalf of the Law Society of Ontario to voice our grave concern over the numerous reports regarding the arrest and detention of lawyers and law students that have taken place since the military junta overrode the November 2020 election results and assumed power following a widely reported coup on February 1, 2021. When reports of serious issues of injustice to legal professionals and the judiciary come to our attention, we speak out.

Ever since the Myanmar military illegally seized power from all three branches of government, there have been protests and unrest throughout the country. The arrests of the legitimately elected civilian leaders of the national and state governments, including National League for Democracy leader Aung San Suu Kyi and President Win Myint, have sparked the outrage of Myanmar's citizens and the international community. Myanmar's citizens took to the streets and began peacefully protesting the military's actions and demanded the restoration of their democracy. In response to those peaceful protests, the military junta have arrested and detained citizens who participated in these protests or spoke out against military actions. In addition, there are reported amendments to several pieces of legislation contrary to the United Nations' Universal Declaration of Human Rights. For example, amendments to the Penal Code 1860 (s124A) criminalize anti-government protests with a maximum penalty of 20 years in jail. Additionally, the suspension of certain sections of the Law Protecting the Privacy and Security of Citizens (2017) has eliminated the obligation for state authorities to bring detainees before a court within 24 hours. The junta have also used live ammunition on its own citizens, killing at least 149 to date according to the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights.

At least 45 lawyers and 15 law students are among those who have been arrested and detained without charges. These are only a few of the many examples of the human rights violations currently being undertaken by the military against its own citizens including lawyers and law students:

- Lawyer Khin Maung Zaw was threatened for defending Aung San Suu Kyi. His family has also been threatened.
- U Nyan Win, another lawyer for Aung San Suu Kyi, was detained, and his whereabouts remain unknown.
- Over 40 lawyers were arrested for peacefully protesting the military coup, and remain in custody without charges.
- 15 law students were arrested and continue to be detained without charges, also for protesting peacefully.

Considering these circumstances, the Law Society urges you to demand that the military junta comply with Myanmar's obligations under international human rights laws, including the United Nations' Universal Declaration of Human Rights and The Basic Principles on the Role of Lawyers.

Article 5 of The Universal Declaration of Human Rights states:

No one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment.

Article 9 states:

No one shall be subjected to arbitrary arrest, detention, or exile.

Article 19 states:

Everyone has the right to freedom of opinion and expression; this right includes freedom to hold opinions without interference and to seek, receive and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers.

Article 20 states:

Everyone has the right to freedom of peaceful assembly and association.

Article 8 of the Basic Principles on the Role of Lawyers states:

All arrested, detained, or imprisoned persons shall be provided with adequate opportunities, time, and facilities to be visited by and to communicate and consult with a lawyer, without delay, interception, or censorship and in full confidentiality. Such consultations may be within sight, but not within the hearing, of law enforcement officials.

Article 16 states:

Governments shall ensure that lawyers (a) are able to perform all of their professional functions without intimidation, hindrance, harassment or improper interference; (b) are able to travel and to consult with their clients freely both within their own country and abroad; and (c) shall not suffer, or be threatened with, prosecution or administrative, economic or other sanctions for any action taken in accordance with recognized professional duties, standards and ethics.

Article 17 states:

Where the security of lawyers is threatened as a result of discharging their functions, they shall be adequately safeguarded by the authorities.

Article 18 states:

Lawyers shall not be identified with their clients or their clients' causes as a result of discharging their functions.

Furthermore, Article 23 states:

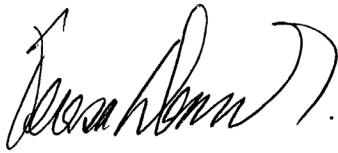

Lawyers like other citizens are entitled to freedom of expression, belief, association, and assembly. In particular, they shall have the right to take part in public discussion of matters concerning the law, the administration of justice and the promotion and protection of human rights and to join or form local, national or international organizations and attend their meetings, without suffering professional restrictions by reason of their lawful action or their membership in a lawful organization.

The Law Society urges Myanmar's military junta to:

- a. immediately and unconditionally release all lawyers, paralegals, judges, law students and human rights defenders who have been detained for peacefully protesting and exercising their professional duties since the coup on February 1, 2021;
- b. immediately and unconditionally withdraw all charges against all lawyers, paralegals, judges, law students and human rights defenders who have been detained for peacefully protesting and exercising their professional duties since the coup on February 1, 2021;
- c. put an end to all acts of harassment against all lawyers, paralegals, judges, law students and human rights defenders in Myanmar;

- d. ensure that all lawyers, paralegals, judges, law students and human rights defenders in Myanmar can carry out their professional duties and activities without fear of reprisals, physical violence, or other human rights violations; and
- e. ensure in all circumstances respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms in accordance with international human rights standards and international instruments.

Yours truly,

Teresa Donnelly
Treasurer
