

Doctor of Laws, honoris causa

June 13, 2008

Margaret Helen Ogilvie

Treasurer, may I present to you and this Convocation, Margaret Helen Ogilvie, and request that you confer upon her the degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa.

Margaret Ogilvie is a prominent and prolific legal scholar; an exceptional teacher, and an innovative researcher. Her contributions to the legal profession both in Canada and abroad have been impressive.

Called to the Bars of both Nova Scotia and Ontario, she has had an extremely successful academic career at Carleton University's Department of Law, where she is highly respected by both students and faculty. Her publications are extensive and she is considered one of the leading experts in banking and commercial law and church and state relations in Canada. Her reputation as a legal scholar is reflected in the honours that she has been awarded in the university, the broader academic community and the province of Ontario.

Margaret Ogilvie is deserving of the highest honour this Society can give and I ask you to confer upon her the degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa.
