10 audio cassettes

Biographical/Sketch/Administrative History

Patricia Skidmore was a history professor and author on the faculty at Brescia University College (affiliated with the University of Western Ontario). Professor Skidmore retired from Brescia University College on June 27th, 2008. She served as chair of the Canadian Oral History Association and authored a two-volume history of Brescia University College.

Scope and Content

Collection consists of two sets of oral history projects prepared by Ann McKerlie, a student under the supervision of Professor Patricia Skidmore as part of an oral history course at Brescia University College, a women's college located in London, Ontario. The projects pertain to oral history interviews with five female judges: Justice Lucy Glenn, Justice Katie McGowan, Justice Helen Rady, Justice Lynda Templeton, and Justice Mary Marshman. Included with each interview is a letter of introduction, a set of interview questions, full or partial transcripts of the interview, indexes, a release form, and a thank you letter. Each set of interviews includes an outline of the interviewer's comments, a time log, a bibliography, an essay, and audio cassettes containing recordings of the interviews. The second set of interviews also includes a research paper by Ann McKerlie entitled "Gender and the bench: women judges in the Ontario provincial and superior courts".
